

This book consists of true stories that develop between a young boy and his grandfather as the boy grows up in eastern Wisconsin. Sharing a love for the outdoors and in gardening, the boy learns lessons in life from his grandfather as they work together harvesting potatoes each year in the family's potato patch. The lessons grow more meaningful as the young boy becomes a man. He begins to understand his grandfather at a deeper level based on these lessons of the past. The young man soon learns the same lessons apply to him as he faces life on his own. Lighter moments in the book take place when the two men are enjoying Wisconsin's outdoors while fishing and hunting. (This is a short book of 38 pages.)
